Transitions in the Economy:
a digital and circular future

Panel discussion

Digital Operations and Finance

Entrepreneurism is gaining importance: working on complex social and ecological issues. Digital technologies offer the opportunity to improve the transparency of operational and financial processes and to make the effects of choices clear. We research, build and experiment with secure and reliable infrastructures and systems and with linking operational and financial data. In that way we want to help (networks of) organisations to make the transition to become future-proof companies. What research and what partnerships do we still require in the region to realise this?
